

Transfer Pathway – Argosy University, Twin Cities

Institution Name: Husson University and New England School of Communications at Husson

Founded in 1898, Husson became a University in October of 2008, having evolved from a small proprietary school to an accredited independent institution offering undergraduate programs in business, education, health, communications, and science and humanities, graduate programs in business, nursing, occupational therapy, criminal justice administration, counseling psychology, education, school counseling, and first professional doctoral programs in pharmacy and physical therapy. The undergraduate student body has grown to over two thousand day students and one thousand graduate and evening students on the campus in Bangor and at extended learning centers in Westbrook, Presque Isle, and Wells, Maine. In addition, the campus is home to international students who come to Husson from all parts of the world. Husson graduates have achieved success in a wide variety of professional positions in Maine and throughout the world.

The Eastern Maine Medical Center School of Nursing, founded in 1892, merged with Husson University and became the origins of the School of Health. In 1997, Husson purchased the New England School of Communications, which was a wholly-owned subsidiary of the University with separate accreditation and degree granting authority until 2014 when it merged with Husson becoming a school within the University.

Are you willing to accept credits from Argosy University students?

Yes, if they meet the transfer criteria.

If so, please outline your transfer process including any exceptions, guarantees, limits, etc.:

Students who have attended other accredited institutions (see below for list of acceptable accrediting agencies) and who wish to transfer to Husson are admitted to advanced standing on the quality of their credentials. Such transfer students should have the institution(s) attended send official transcripts of the course work completed to the Husson Admissions Office for evaluation. It is the transferee's responsibility to have these transcripts forwarded to the Husson Admissions Office.

Upon request, Transcripts may be individually evaluated prior to applying.

A transfer student who is admitted to Husson from an accredited institution is granted academic credit for acceptable transfer courses with the following guidelines:

The transfer student with an associate degree may be granted advanced standing, i.e., junior status with sixty (60) credit hours accepted from the transcript. The student must be aware that more than two additional academic years at Husson may be necessary to complete the degree requirements for a specific Bachelor of Science degree program. The transfer student, after becoming a resident student at Husson, cannot transfer additional credits from any other institution into a Husson degree or certificate program. A transfer student without an associate degree is granted academic credit for courses in which a minimum of "C" or better grade had been attained, or demonstrates academic performance. Students should consult specific program information and /or department heads to determine whether additional requirements or limitations apply. In order to successfully transfer classes, students must have a 2.00 overall grade point average. Each course is reviewed individually, and in addition to a "C" or better, each course must have a similar course description, be equitable in credit hours, and must fit within the program of study.

Students who transfer into Husson University must complete their final 30 credit hours at Husson University and a minimum of 15 credits must be specific to the major.
